How we can help you with State and Local Tax

Identify your potential refunds

The numerous changes in the area of sales tax have increased the complexity of this issue. Exemptions are available that can reduce sales and use tax. If you are not aware of these, you can not use them to your advantage. Our sales tax professionals will review your records for the exemptions your business deserves.

Minimize your potential exposure

Many states with budgets impacted by the current economy are becoming more aggressive in enforcing current nexus and state tax laws. As a result, states are increasing their efforts in collecting more sales tax from businesses. Will your business be one of them?

If you are selected for a sales tax audit, do you know your exposure? There is a good chance you have exposure and do not even know it. We can help. We will advise you on how to organize your business to limit your exposure to sales tax. Our sales tax professionals can review your records and identify your risks of exposure. If you are chosen for an examination, we can represent your interest against any potential assessments imposed by the Department of Revenue.

Represent you during a tax examination

Have you already been selected for a sales tax audit? If your state's department of revenue has already assessed you for past sales tax, we can help you. We can represent you during your examination.
